The Sayward halls from British Columbia, and was last seen when off the coast of Japan, with 688 skins on board. It is probable that she drifted north, following the seals to the rookeries, and lost her hunters in a fog or in a storm. The five boats, with their crews finally came together for mutual protection and assistance, and, after being fastened together, drifted about in the open sea, the crews hoping that some scaler or cruiser would pick them up before death came.

Five schooners have been lost and become total wrecks this season. Four of them sent crews to watery graves, and, so far, it is known that nearly a hundred lives have been lost.

An "Evening World" reporter ascertained last night that it is customary for the green-goods men in these tempestuous times to give a ficilitious address, and after a few days call at the office and tell the manager that he has moved from the address given and that he will call personally thereafter to get any messages for him. It is expected that "C. Fernandez" will play this trick. He may get caught at it.

It is well known that green-goods men never "work" without the permission of the police.

of the wire manipulators, but as the Western Union officials were on the alert for McNutt, having been warned from New York to look out for him, the men found it advisable to remove to a hotel on Van Buren street, near Plymouth place.

Here a complete set of the most modern and improved telegraph paraphernalia was introduced, and the ticket brokers and the supposed sucker from Colorado lined up to be "skinned."

The next move was to emilion an electrician named Moffett, who, together with McNutt, was to tap the wires and make the necessary connections.

Dairyman's Family.

Dr. W. H. Park, Chief of the Departs ment of Bacteriology of the Board of Health, is preparing some specimens of the cheese seized in a Washington street commission house yesterday afternoon for the purpose of cultivating the bacilli of diphtheria, which, it is suspected, the cheese contains. The seizure consisted of fifty-one cheeses of sixty pounds weight each, go County. About a week ago the State Board of Health received notice that a dairyman at Afton, in whose family there had been a fatal case of diphtheria, had sold all of the milk produced by his herd to the Star Creamery; also, that the milk had been made into cheese which was intended for the New York An inspector was sent to Afton for a An inspector was sent to Afton for a sample, which he secured and brought back to Albany. A hasty bacteriological examination showed bacill of diphtheria, every culture being a remarkably good specimen. An order to seize and condemn the entire lot was issued, but when the State health officers arrived at Afton, they found the cheese had been shipped to New York.

Chief Chemist Martin yesterday afternoon.
Dr. Martin and all the other members of the Board of Health refused to give the name of the commission merchant for the reason that he had no information yet that the cheese was infected, and that the publication of his name in connection with the matter might be disastrous to his business.
A letter received from the State Board of Health this morning by Sanitary Supt. Roberts gives additional details!
It stated positively that bacilli of dipatheria had been found in one of the cheeses of the same lot shipped to New York.

It appears that the person who died cheeses of the same lot shipped to New York.

It appears that the person who died of diphtheria had been nursed by the members of the family who milked the cows; that they exercised no precautions in handling the milk, which saturally became infected with the disease germs. As milk is one of the best known nutrients for the cultivation of bacilli of diphtheria, the germs thrived, and when made into cheese there must have been, the Board of Health believes, swarms of healthy colonies.

All of the cheese, save that brought to the laboratory for examination, still remains at the commission house, but it is separated from the other goods and is covered over with a tarpaulin. It will not be destroyed until the health authorities are fully satisfied that it contains disease germs,
